

Art 493, 2017

A community of playful scholars, this hardworking group of women explored, questioned, and adventured their way through the spring of 2017 to bring you their passions in art education.

To the Audience

Thank you for participating today in this important event. Your support is so important to this program and to each participant. With your presence, you have shown us that art education is an important field and our students are critical to its success. Please take the inspiration you gain today and pass it on.

Interested in learning more about ARTed Talks? Visit artedtalks.weebly.com.

All of today's talks will be added to the site soon!

To the students of Art 493

A special thank you goes to you all, who worked so hard this spring to engage in professional dispositions, try out new ideas, and develop your teaching identity. This is not an easy process, nor does it ever really finish. Keep up the great work and best of luck in your next adventure!

ARTed Talks

Sharing a passion for teaching art

est. 2015
Miami University Art Education

2017

Miami University Art Education presents

The 3rd annual ARTed Talks

Monday, May 8, 2017

12:45 p.m. – 2:45 p.m., Art Building 154

Order of presentations

Welcome

Dr. Stephanie Baer

Art: The Universal Language

Kaylee Baumbach

Individualization Through Art

Ryan Lott

The Art of Moving On

Remy Groh

Smashing the Stigma

Rachel Zeinner

Art is a Voice Louder than Language

Jesse Green

The Art is in the Process

Beth Boswell

The Art of Community

Kelli Scarpa

Art 493: Professional Dispositions in Art Education

This course is designed to engage students in the development of professional dispositions and preparation of being an effective and productive art educator. Students participate in local and national professional organizations, network with practicing educators, hone philosophy statements and understandings, maintain a professional website, develop and utilize professional resources, and carefully hone their presentation skills.

What is ARTed Talks?

ARTed Talks (formerly TEDartEd) began in 2014 with a single participant; A lone art education student who bravely asked: What's my passion? Now, ARTed Talks is a yearly event highlighting the work and passion of juniors and seniors in Art Education at Miami University. The model for the preparation and design is from the world-renowned series, TED (see TED.com) and TEDx that follow the TED Global Conference model. They extend the ideal of "ideas worth spreading."

Why ARTed Talks?

- Effective educators participate in the advocacy of their field with a clear and focused voice.
- TED-style talks require multiple modes of thinking and practice.
- Art Teachers matter and their experiences should be shared to further learning in the field.

